Bay St. Louis Council Reports

for costs, the need for new equipment and loss of value of destruction of homes and commercial property by Hurricane Camille has caused Bay St. Louis City Council to finally charge for garbage pickup. The amount to each resident has not been determined but probably $1,000 on the bulky records, a charge which would produce $10,000 annually. Present equipment costs about $14,000 per month, a replacement cost is two trucks now in use but both are so old and miles so high, replacement is considered inevitable. It is anticipated Council will authorize paid overtime by Garbage Truck drivers. It is extremely difficult to maintain a crew.

A charge to be adopted by Council it could be collected against the monthly solidified bill.

Council contributed $100.00 to Hancock County Department's Medical Construction Program. This money is being matched money from the State for use in obtaining matching money from the State for use in vision, hearing, tonsillectomy and other abnormalities through age 10.

Planning session #1 provided services to property owners in areas where public schools and private have been discontinued. The City Council states that prohibit the continuation of this practice.

Six new members were elected to the Board of Governors of the Bay Waveland Yacht Club last Friday night when the club re-opened with a festive catered dinner attended by a large group of members. The club rooms were gaily decorated with Christmas motifs with Mrs. Howard Adams and Mrs. J. C. Baxter as co-chairmen of the decorations. Newly elected officials are Terry Sweeney, Jack Rutledge, Robert Wade, Fred McDonald, Dr. Charles Cox and Mrs. Virginia Miller.

Sidney Prague was recipient of the Commodore McFarland Trophy and in making the presentation Commodore Ray Gordon explained the cup was given to the person who in the opinion of the committee had done greatest service during the year in promoting the interest of the Club.

There was a standing vote of appreciation given by the group in recognition of the many services rendered by the Commodore Gordon whose term of office expires at this time. At the next meeting of the board of Governors a new president will be elected together with other officials and there will be an election of a board member to fill the vacated seat when Charles Kleffner, who was from Bay St. Louis, died in October. The press conference at which the report was received was gratified by the show of enthusiasm evidenced at the meeting.

Drugs Can Help... And They Can Hurt
For Health And Future...
You Must Learn The Difference

Ours is a drug-taking society. From birth until death, most of us, from time to time, will use physician-prescribed drugs for our health and our well-being.

Drugs properly used are among the greatest of boons to mankind. If we respect them; and use them under proper guidance — we never need to fear them.

The problem is the growing carelessness or indiscriminate use of drugs — especially by young people — without the advice of a physician or other health professional, and for reasons, or under conditions, which a physician would not approve. In short — Drug Abuse.

Reasons teen-agers give for drug abuses are escape — curiosities, desire for pleasure, rebellion, and conformity. Drugs taken for these reasons may lead to dependence. A knowledge of drugs, and their potential, is imperative — if people are to make the personal decision about them which may affect their lives and their futures.

Kimball International, in cooperation with other groups is spearheading a program called Operation Drug Alert aimed at mobilizing communities to conduct drug education programs for people of all ages — as a powerful, positive step in the battle against drug abuse.

Pulpwood Business Revives.

making up in New Orleans and going as far as Ocean Springs. Excursion tickets sold for a dollar round-trip and at least three excursions ran on Sundays. Those were the days when local folks dressed up and walked down to the L. & N. to wave at their New Orleans friends who were passing through, or meeting those who stopped off in Bay St. Louis.

Oldsters remember "Charlie", the enterprising Negro who met all excursion trains and sold seven kinds of delicious sandwiches. There was beef, fish, turkey, veal, pork lamb, and turtle steaks! Charlie got the meat for these sandwiches from the huge sea-turtle fishermen brought in from their off-shore fishing and it was a well-known fact that the sea-turtle could provide seven distinct flavors depending on the cut or these large, lumbering reptiles weighing up to 200 pounds.

For a while L. & N. business, both passenger and freight, looked like it would be back in this area. There was a great need for the railroad to turn to the port of New Orleans for coal and supplies, and a division of the L. & N. created new terminals and docks in the early 1900s. Freight movements increased, but so did costs, and the L. & N. went into decline and finally folded. However, few years later came the Great Depression. The Waiting Room Clothing Counter is operated now by a group of paid employees. The store has no record and does not know how many people have been served. They work on the satisfaction that anyone who comes in needs and if the garments wanted can be found on the rack, then everyone is happy.

They wouldn't mind if you don't need anything, but they like to see the smile on your face.

Yes, there is still a rooming house in Bay St. Louis, Natchez Street, there is still a post office when at 142 Main Street, and Mrs. Morse Cole, owner of course, is the telephone man, a two-way radio system. The old station, built in 1907, has hope for new life beyond the pulpwood business on which it currently thrives. She goes as talk of activity to the Sea Port and Harbor — stern and bows in the making, and a building for Louis public library, and for repairs to the deteriorating buildings, there's still life in the town.

These new efforts are to bring back the old town.

Work is still being done.

Jr. Red Cross Completed "Toys For Tots" Project

Toys for Tots, the project adopted by members of the Bay St. Louis Junior Red Cross members, was outstandingly successful, according to Miss Keith Blaize who is president of the group and a senior in Bay Senior High School.

Miss Julia Blaize, who serves as sponsor to the group said there were about 80 members in the organization and they delivered toys for about 300 children. In addition to a complete set of toys for each child the Junior Red Cross members added a lovely assortment of candies for each child.

The Toys for Tots project was selected by the group in an all-out effort to make children happy at this Christmas season. They realized that due to the hardships created by the August storm many parents would not be able to afford ample toys.

The group solicited the help of wholesale houses and local merchants and received generous contributions of both toys and cash. In addition they used their study hall period to make and stuff animals, and worked out a routine for making delivery of the gifts. Deliveries were made to the parents for everybody knows that it is the parent who opens the door for jolly old Santa Claus!

The situation may be a toy or two which the child just isn't ready to play with, something he would enjoy much more when he is several months older.

Then there are others which must be assembled when there is time to read and follow the directions carefully. Too, children often receive many more toys than they can enjoy at one time.

A toy away for a while can be brought out as something
"new" in February or March.
It will brighten the day when the child is house bound by the weather, ill or just bored with all "the old things."

The list of "toys" can include crayons, a supply of drawing paper, a stack of colorful note pads, chalk, a stapler, good quality children's scissors, a hole puncher, rubber bands, paste or tape.

With a little help, preschool children can have great fun making long paper chains, holi-cards or thank-you notes. Older children, too, can use these "do-it-yourself" supplies to make imaginary tickets, pos-items.

Mississippi Power Company Petitions For Rate Adjustment

Mississippi Power Company, Gulfport, has petitioned the Mississippi Public Service Commission for rate adjustments which will produce an estimated $1,900,000 in additional revenues in 1970 from residential, commercial and industrial customers.

A. J. Watson, Jr., company president stated, "It was with great reluctance and after very careful analysis, that the company asked for this rate relief. Other than adjustments for higher fuel costs and income tax rates, this will be our first general rate increase after a history of forty-five years of rate reductions, the last being as recently as 1964."

"The increase would be relatively small one amounting to less than four percent of territorial revenues. Overall, it is much lower percentage wise than the increases in the cost of living in 1969. As everyone else, we have been faced with rapidly rising costs in every phase of our activities. Added to this has been the heavy loss of business and facilities from Hurricane Camille."

"Another consideration is the need to finance our very large construction program. Without rate relief, we could have difficulty in calling on our creditors at reasonable interest, and the dynamic growth potential of our service area makes it imperative that we continue to build new generating units, power lines, and other necessary facilities in an ever increasing rate."

"The steep increases in cost of money for financing may construct vividly illustrate the conditions that have brought about the need for a rate increase. In 1966, we sold $10,000,000 in bonds with an interest rate of 6 percent. In 1967, we sold another $10,000,000 in bonds with an interest rate of 7 1/2 percent, an increase in interest rates of 19 percent. Recent bond ratings by companies with similar ratings to ours have carried interest rates as high as 8 1/2 percent."

Scout Explorers

Hold Annual Party

Explorers Post 208 and leaders held their Christmas party last Wednesday night at the American Legion Building. Edward Murtagh American Legion Commander, discussed the importance of youth organization and thanked the boys for their cooperation after Camille.

Refreshments were served and gifts exchanged.

Attending were Mr. Murtagh, Chuck Scianna, Charles Scianna, Al Vetter, Bob Harvey, Chett White, Warren Duffy, Buck Buehler, Ken Scianna, John Netto, Mike Romanoff, Steve Scianna, David Lehmann, Gary Blazek, Larry Buehler, N. LaFontaine, David Johns, Jeff Rutherford and Alvin LeFontaine.

Reports of the technical departments at both mills indicate that the quality of the wood is quite suitable for papermaking, and a stepped-up rate of harvest is expected to begin about the first of the year.

St. Regis Timber Salvage Slowed

A week of almost continual rain and cooler weather in hurricane damaged wind of the St. Regis Paper Company's Mississippi forests, slowed the pace of the harvest.

As of December 18, the company had shipped 69,422 cords of storm-damaged wood to its mills at Monticello, Miss., and Pensacola, Fla. Of these, 60,785 cords came from the forest of other landowners and 8,637 from St. Regis forests.

A reduced rate of reclamation is indicated as the mills shut down for the Christmas holidays and wood producers themselves take time off for the occasion.

Transportation problems, including a shortage of railroad cars, particularly those hauling logs, continue to impede the salvage operation, which is aimed at getting all the damaged wood harvested before insect infestation or decay reduces the quality of the wood below the levels necessary for a satisfactory end product.

Continuing, the sheriff said

"In most instances taxes are not paid until after January 1,

but this year we had the tax books ready early so we began accepting taxes right after December 1."

In answering a question about why so many people were lined up in the tax collection

office, Sheriff Fred Curet said,

"Those people are not buying auto licenses. They are paying their taxes early."

Mississippi Employment Outlook Optimistic

Eight thousand new jobs will be available in Mississippi in 1974.

This was a statement made by P. Fatherree, state director of Vocational and Technical Education, at a recent meeting in the southwest Mississippi neighbors in McComb.

Fatherree continued, saying that this demand will impose a heavy load on the schools of the state in supplying the skilled technical training that will be needed.

Education is the key to solving the problem. The first hundred years of Mississippi education were aimed at preparing students for college and college degrees.

This, however, has not solved the problem because 92 percent of the students who enter second grade will not finish college. This leaves only eight percent that will complete the training that our system is set for.

Vocational education is one key to the problem. Not only will it help to fill the jobs which are available, but it will also give a tremendous boost to the economy of the state.

Fatherree stated that in the last few years a great change has taken place in the philosophy and attitudes regarding vocational education. Parents, school and junior high students, school officials and the lay public are now concerned about school facilities necessary to meet the needs of the masses of the students.

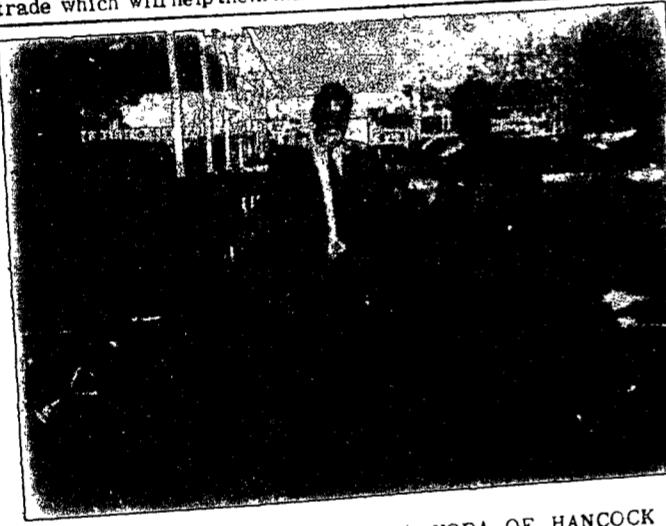

He said that he was meeting with two school boards to discuss vocational education and to assist them in planning vocational programs to meet their vocational needs.

In recent years the state has approved and funded several vocational complexes which provide vocational and technical training at no cost for the people of the state.

Twenty-five high school students who are also approved and funded, come serving two or three districts and many area counties.

Fatherree pointed out that contributions have been made to vocational education, but to the total needs of high school students another $5 million should be provided.

The development of the vocational technical program can mean billions of dollars in increased employment. Recent studies show that for every

Viet Nam Packages Mailed
In Name of Junior Auxiliary

Sue Hensley, president of the Hancock County Junior Auxiliary, has been notified that 50 ditty bags were filled and sent to Vietnam in the name of the Hancock County Chapter by the Brookhaven Chapter of the auxiliary.

These bags had been promised the American Red Cross through the local chapter prior to Hurricane Camille. Material had been selected -- bright red denim with green draw cords -- and plans were to fill the bags with at least 12 personal items acceptable to military personnel such as combat knives, compasses, calendars, radios, etc. Hurricane Camille took the majority and when the National Auxiliary Association heard of the dilemma by grapevine route it was solved through the kindness of the Brookhaven Mississippi Chapter. The bags were made, filled and sent, each with a separate card saying "Merry Christmas from the Hancock County Chapter of the Junior Auxiliary."

The Hancock Chapter "We thought people in this area would want to know that our contribution to the Red Cross was minimal, that the goodness did not stop there."

"We know they'll want to know that our men in Vietnam received a bag of Christmas cheer."

INDUSTRIES PLAN MAJOR EXPENDITURE

A recent report stated that Mississippi had landed 448 new expanded industries this year with a capital investment total of $75 million with approximately 10,000 new jobs. Projects also seem favorable for improving this record on the basis of various indications. This would add up to some good opportunities for individuals in the state to obtain new places, employment and more payrolls in the year ahead.

GULFPORT, MISS.

The recent revision in Mississippi's extended coverage insurance rates, approved Oct. 17 by the State Insurance Commission, was necessitated mainly by the catastrophe property damage caused by Hurricane Camille. Although higher rates for extended coverage are part of the revision, mandatory deductible provisions were included to help keep insurance costs as low as possible for state property owners.

It should be noted, however, that a 12 per cent statewide increase in rates had already been indicated by loss experience before the killer hurricane hit the Gulf Coast on Aug. 17. A much greater increase in the level of premiums paid by South Mississippi policyholders was made necessary by extensive property damage caused by Camille.

Rate increases do not affect the property owner's basic fire insurance policy and apply only to extended coverage which is an optional addition to the fire policy. Extended coverage insurance provides payment for damage by windstorm, hail, smoke, explosion, riot, riot after a strike, civil commotion and damage by vehicle or aircraft.

NO REVISIONS

The increase in rates calls for a 50 per cent increase in extended coverage rates for the six Southwest Mississippi counties, referred to as Zone I, for rating purposes. They are Hancock, Harrison, Jackson, George, Stone and Pearl River.

The next level of nine counties from the Gulf Coast Zone II, received a 30 per cent increase in extended coverage rates. These counties are Wilkinson, Wayne, Pike, Walthall, Marion, Lamar, Forrest, Perry and Copiah.

The rest of the state, Zone III, received a 12 per cent increase in insurance rates for on extended coverage. Based on the last two years' experience of the Mississippi Catastrophe Rating Bureau, the statutory organization which compiles loss experience statistics and recommends rates for use by member and subscriber insurance companies, had recommended the 12 per cent statewide increase before Camille hit the state.

DEDUCTIBLES

The insurance revision also includes the addition of a mandatory $50 deductible for all policies for the entire state of Mississippi and a mandatory $100 deductible for wind and hail for Zones I and II in South Mississippi. Under the deductible provision, a policyholder pays all losses up to the basic deductible amount per claim. The insurance company pays all for insured damage beyond the amount of the deductible.

The use of deductible is an important technique in keeping administrative costs down for insurance companies and those savings are passed on to their insureds. Small losses are just as costly to process as large losses; the same reports must be made, the same appraisals are required and nearly the same number of man-hours and volume of paperwork are involved, regardless of the size of the loss. This paperwork and paperwork cost money. In many cases the cost of processing the loss exceeds the amount of the claim paid to the policyholder. Deductibles for small amounts eliminate this cost.

The primary purpose of insurance is to enable the policy holder through the payment of a relatively small premium to obtain financial protection against the large losses -- those which would cripple the family budget or wipe out a family's savings. When the home insurance buyer pays for his own maintenance or minor repair losses it is possible for insurance companies to offer protection against the big losses at lower premium costs.

Most home insurance buyers don't suffer losses very often -- even $50 losses -- but the number of such smaller losses has been increasing and they add up quickly for an insurance company covering a great many homes. A recent study of national insurance loss experience showed that about one-third of all losses for damage to homes and contents were for under $50.

SAMPLE CHANGES

After the increase in Mississippi extended coverage rates, a $10,000 insurance policy on a private dwelling policy on a private dwelling increased as follows: In Zone I rates for extended coverage increased $8.60 a year from $18.10 to $26.70. In Zone II, extended coverage rates increased $8.10 per year from $17 to $22.10. In Zone III, rates increased $2 from $17 to $19 annually.

Despite these increases, rates are still lower than in past years. The same rate structures for the three zones in 1964 were Zone I, $8.60; Zone II, $8.10; and Zone III, $8.10. By way of comparison, today rates are $9.30 lower in Zone I; $9.10 higher in Zone II; and the same in the remainder of the state.

As late as 1966 premium in the three zones were $8.60, $22 and $22, respectively.

Neighboring Louisiana, which suffered one of the two major damage from Hurricane Camille in 1966, has a mandatory deductible on all property insurance.

The State Insurance Commission requires that rates be adequate but not excessive and not unfairly discriminatory. Fundamentally, they are determined by the frequency of claims and the average cost of each claim. Factors reflecting economic trends are also used as a guide to the amount needed to pay claims in the immediate future and to offset the cost of doing business.

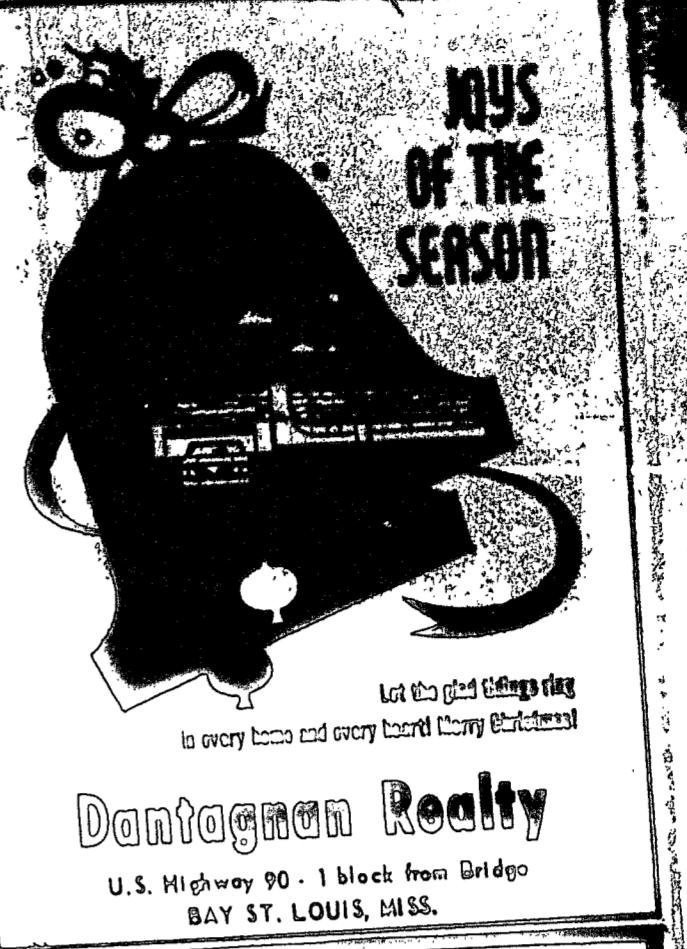

The revision is the property insurance policy in Mississippi were recommended by the three-man State Insurance Commission by the Mississippi State Rating Bureau and subsequently approved on Oct. 17. The Bureau, which is established by state law, compiles loss experience statistics for 241 insurance companies writing insurance in the state, and then recommends adequate insurance rates for use by member and subscriber companies.

Rates are reviewed annually and extended coverage rates are based on a period of ten years of experience, so a major loss may occur in any one given year will be offset by averaging in cumulative experience from other years. Thus an average experience record may be determined.

In the years since 1959, Mississippi has been hit by several major catastrophes: Hurricane Carla in 1961, Hurricane Bebe in 1965, two tornadoes in 1967, hail, tornadoes and winds in 1968.

The Mississippi State Rating Bureau has no authority to define words or terms of any insurance policy issued by a specific member or subscriber or company. The Bureau continues its activities to the accumulation of loss experience and the recommending of rates.

A quota insurance rate level is necessary to make the quota insurance in an area attractive to insurance companies. Without rate adequacy, a condition inevitably develops when insurance companies can't write insurance in the less desirable risks.
